

Year 7 'Dream Masters' pass on their wisdom

Holt School, Berkshire

After welcoming the School of Dreams team to their school, a group of students and teachers from Holt School in Wokingham have been busy cascading the content from the workshop on to the rest of Year 7. Using ideas from School of Dreams, the school held a skills day where all Year 7 students had an opportunity to think about their dreams, and develop methods to help turn them into reality. The students who had attended the workshop took on the role of 'Dream Masters', helping to lead the groups with their teachers, and pass on the skills they had learnt to their contemporaries.

As the content of School of Dreams has been carefully constructed to enable students and educators to replicate the programme in whole or part once they have participated, teachers from Holt School were able to use their experiences to great effect in order to pass the benefits on.

Chris Pearce, pastoral manager of Year 7 said: "I was very pleased with how things went and hope to repeat the experience next year. The feedback has been really positive, with the pupils who attended the workshop earlier in the year thoroughly enjoying their role as 'Dream Masters'."

School of Dreams' lead facilitator, John Biggs commented: "Walking into Holt school and seeing the young people replicating the delivery of the programme to their peers only weeks after they themselves were delegates was a great experience."
